With the growing fear of Covid-19 which has silenced the entire world with its ever spreading wings of death, the young generation, the students, by and large are the worst sufferers. It is moving like a strong wave and creating devastating social, economic and political scars. So deep are these scars that the HRD has no place of eminence and has taken a back seat. Students are locked up in this lockdown, going through extreme stress and anxiety related to their career which seems bleak and far-fetched to them. Only a very small percentage were able to adopt online teaching which was beneficial to only a small of students. Particularly those who have access to internet. The rest, in remote areas have on idea as to what is going to happen in the future. The pandemic has disrupted the education sector at large. If the situation persists, it would take a long time, longer than usual, to come back on the track. The government should try and find solutions and ensure the overall progress of the young minds who are ready to jump to any opportunity given to them.

His lesson is very interesting. Boys listen to him silently. He is very young and smart, tall and fair. He never beats or scolds any student. He tries to teach them with utmost love and homely affection. It is a pleasure to attend his classes. Although he is very loving and affectionate but he is a very strict disciplinarian. He cannot allow anyone to take undue advantage of his kind nature. He never gets angry while doing his lesson. He commands much love and respect from his students. Indeed, he is a very popular teacher of our school.

You have asked me in your letter my preparation for upcoming examination. Well I am studying hard to be selected in top-10, securing high mark in all the papers. But my chemistry teacher not provide good notes.

So, sends some notes on chemistry for my preparation. I know you have good collection of chemistry books.

I shall be very thankful to you if you send me a few notes related to chemistry. Pay my regards to everyone at home.

Your loving brother
Uday

10. Respected Principle, Teachers and Dear Friends,

Most of the people still defecate in the open space, most of the villages lack waste disposal and drainage systems and many in the villages are ignorant about the consequences of poor sanitation and unhygienic conditions. So, need for sanitation in villages figures prominently in the National Agenda for governance.
