Notwithstanding its various defects English education has done great good to India. The ideas of democracy and self-government are its gifts. Nursed on English education the Indian leaders were inspired by the western thought, culture and freedom struggles. They fought for and won their motherland's freedom. Being spoken throughout the world, English is necessary for international contact, trade, commerce and science. English is rich in literature, having produced great writers like Shakespeare, Milton, Pope, G. B. Shaw, etc.
